Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 21 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rather cloudy with some outbreaks of rain, dry later.

Today:
Rather cloudy and damp initially, with outbreaks of patchy light rain. Becoming dry and brighter with sunny spells this afternoon. Generally very mild with light winds. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Some patchy cloud overnight but generally rather dry. A low risk of some light rain in the west. Winds remaining light throughout. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Monday:
Monday will likely be similar to Sunday with some dryness but also outbreaks of rain at times and partly cloudy skies. Staying on the mild side as winds remain light. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Remaining dry but becoming windy through Tuesday with partly cloudy skies. Similar on Wednesday but with a chance of rain later. Becoming bright with light winds by Thursday. Remaining mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.